

MENTORING PROGRAMME FOR POSTDOCS

WHAT IS MENTORING?

Mentoring means that an experienced person shares their knowledge with a young colleague and accompanies him or her in their professional and personal development. The focus is on informally passing on knowledge gained from experience and giving confidential, individual advice.

Objectives of the programme

The aim of the 12-month mentoring programme is to provide early-career researchers at Heidelberg University with the best possible support in reaching their personal career goals.

Target groups

The programme is designed for advanced postdocs, habilitation candidates, young research-group leaders, junior professors and tenure-track professors at Heidelberg University who are aiming for a career in academia. They should be willing to take part in the event programme and to actively maintain their mentoring relationship for at least one year.

The programme is also intended to promote groups hitherto under-represented in leading academic positions. Hence a warm invitation to apply goes to women, persons with family duties, first-time academics, and those with a migration history, a disability or chronic disease.

Structure of the mentoring programme

In the confidential relationship with your mentor the programme offers

- individual counselling, tailored to your needs and questions
- feedback on your individual strengths and weaknesses in a sheltered environment
- implicit knowledge from experienced persons, e.g. on the internal "rules of the game" in the academic system

Mentors may work either at Heidelberg University or at research facilities outside Heidelberg.

Networking and qualification

The mentoring relationship is supplemented by the following elements:

Informal networking events (e.g. topic lunches or fireside evenings) open up new access to relevant networks and foster collegiate exchanges on topics related to your career (e.g. obtaining a professorship, acquiring third-party funding, publishing, or building-up and leading a working group).

Two full-day workshops offer tailor-made qualification opportunities, e.g. on the thematic fields "Handling professorial appointments and practising negotiations", "Networking strategies", "Power and micropolitics in academia" and "Work-life balance". Attending at least one of the two workshops is obligatory.

The exact themes reflect the wishes of the participants and are agreed in a kick-off event.
